Table tennis, also known as ping pong, is a fast-paced indoor sport played on a rectangular table divided by a net. The game involves two or four players who hit a lightweight ball back and forth using small, solid rackets. The objective is to score points by making the ball land on the opponent's side of the table in such a way that they cannot return it successfully.

The sport originated in England in the early 20th century and quickly gained popularity worldwide. The International Table Tennis Federation (ITTF), established in 1926, governs the sport and organizes international competitions, including the World Championships and the Table Tennis World Cup. Table tennis became an Olympic sport in 1988, further elevating its global profile.

Matches are typically played in best-of-five or best-of-seven games, with each game won by the first player to reach 11 points, provided they lead by at least two points. Players utilize a variety of techniques, including topspin, backspin, and sidespin, to outmaneuver their opponents. Speed, reflexes, precision, and strategy are crucial for success in table tennis, making it a highly competitive and entertaining sport.
